

Take Me Where The Wind Blows

The night shift dancer's crying, she feels so old
Her dances were a while and more ago
She wanders through the streets and talks to strangers
But no one hears, what she has got to say.

The artist says: "My painting's almost finished"
He drank a lot in hope to find that out
He thinks, he is so lonely for his reasons
For always painting words he cannot say.

The actress sees her role behind the model
She deals with urban life and with ideals
She wears a necklace filled with pure sea water
"A timeless symbol for a timeless life".

The diplomatic mission is now over
"I think we should not tell you all we know"
The weather fairy softly says: "It's raining"
No celebrating atmosphere in town.

An age-old Fiat Ritmo on the church square
Right between the tower and the bar
You guide me through this town, oh can I trust you
Why is it so dark and why so cold?

Chorus

Take me where the wind blows
Take me where the sun goes
Take me where the night will never end
